

Toronto Finance International CEO Jennifer Reynolds to step down as CEO

Toronto, January 5th, 2022 - Toronto Finance International (TFI) announced today the resignation of its President & CEO Jennifer Reynolds after more than four years in the role. Under Reynolds' tenure, Toronto played a leadership role in international networks like Financial Centres for Sustainability and World Alliance of International Financial Centers. Reynolds also advanced TFI's leadership in sustainable finance, both domestically and internationally.

"Serving as TFI's President & CEO has been a privilege," said Ms. Reynolds, "I am honoured and proud to have worked with our staff, members, and stakeholders on the international promotion of the Toronto Financial Centre and the global prominence of the Canadian financial services sector."

Christine (Chris) Morris, TFI Board Chair and Senior Executive Vice President, Enterprise Transformation, Enablement and Customer Experience TD Bank Group, thanked Reynolds and wished her the very best for the future.

"Jennifer has been a great champion for Toronto as a leading international financial centre and a passionate advocate for the talent and expertise of our sector," said Morris. "On behalf of the Board, I want to thank Jennifer for her leadership of TFI over the past four years and wish her much continued success in her next chapter."

Effective February 7th, 2022, Ms. Reynolds will assume the position of CEO of the Women Corporate Directors Foundation (WCD). WCD is the world's largest network of women corporate board directors, with members serving on more than 8,500 public and private boards around the world.
